Carthage High School
Carthage, Indiana

Co-editors, Linda Harrold and Sue Siler; Mrs. McClurg, sponsor; photographer, Jim Stevens; and copy writer, Kathy Geise are all working to meet a deadline.

Busy looking over the books are the business managers, Pam Clark, bus. mgr.; Larry Fenner, adv. mgr.; and Carole Todd, sales mgr.

Seniors Dedicate 1963

Late in Spetember the yearbook staff met and started on the long road of work to finish this book. Although Mrs. McClurg was skillfully guiding us, it took many, many hours of work to prepare the 1963 Ca Hi Ana.

Our first assignment was to sell advertisements. The senior class was allowed half a school day to do this. In this half day we found the businessmen and businesswomen very gracious as we stopped at their various stores. The yearbook had had a successful start thanks to the many people who placed an advertisement in our book.

Assigned as typists are the junior members of the staff. They are Linda Miller, Lynn Kennedy, Trish Sipes, and Cindy Brooks, who is not pictured.

Working on their section of the Ca Hi Ana are section editors Carl Robbins, fac. Ron Weidner and Jack Howard, sports; Anita Leisure and Deanna Carroll, senior; Barb Foust, high school; Sue Copple, elem.; and Beckey Johnson, activities.

Ca Hi Ana to Their Parents

Not long after this we found ourselves dividing a "dummy book" into sections and deciding how many pages should be given to each. After this was completed the section editors made a list of the pictures they wanted and the size. The dummy was finished and now we were ready to start to work.

Our photographer, Mr. Joseph Cooney, came to school two days in order to include all our activities and staff. These two days were busy ones for Mrs. McClurg, our photographer, and editors. It was up to them to organize the groups so there would not be any more time lost than necessary. Mr. Cooney also attended a basketball game and dress rehearsal of the class play in order to get on-the-spot pictures.

When the pictures arrived there was much work to be done. Everyone worked together to get the pictures glued into space and write copy.

As the last shipment was made we hoped that the finished product was worth the extensive effort spent getting it ready. Everyone was readily assured that their time had been well spent as they hurried through their copy of the Ca Hi Ana!

We, the Seniors of Carthage High School, dedicate this edition of the Ca Hi Ana to our parents, who so unselfishly have made it possible for us to attend school, and whose patience, loyalty, and guidance have been an inspiration throughout our school career.

A Multitude of Activities

As we enrolled in school in September, we soon discovered the many surprises that the wonderful year of '62 and '63 had in store for us.

Along with getting acquainted with our new teachers, we still kept up with the past traditions. By keeping in style with the newest fashions, dances, fads, and hair-dos, we encountered many new and interesting sights day after day.

Of course, when we started to school in the fall our sole purpose was to further our education, but in doing this we had a good time also.

A couple of weeks after enrolling in school, we found ourselves busy electing queen candidates, building floats, and making the necessary preparations for our big Fall Festival.

Before the approaching basketball season, we busied ourselves with going to baseball games and cross country meets.

full '62-'63 Calendar

With the winter months arriving, basketball season started things off with excitement and thrills. This sport played a significant role in our school activities. By the time the county tourney came around, there was much enthusiasm both among the players themselves and the student body.

To try out the newest dance steps, we had soc-hops now and then after the ballgames. We noticed how the smaller students had grown up and were becoming good dancers after all. At one of these soc-hops, we elected our yearbook king and queen, Mr. and Miss Ca Hi Ana.

With the coming of spring, students found themselves thinking about spring and summer activities, especially the Junior and Senior Prom. With great anticipation the students look forward to the prom all year, in hopes that each one will be even greater than the last.

With all the classes thinking about how to make some extra money in the summer, we found the seniors planning earnestly to decide on whether to go to college, get jobs, or maybe even to get married.

All these activities and interests combined together to make this year one of the most eventful and best years yet.

Fall Festival Featured

School had just started when it was time to begin the activities of the Fall Festival. The classes, as always, were busy planning and designing their floats with first place as their goal. Naturally, only one float could have that honor, but all of them helped to make this a wonderful parade as well as start that wonderful year.

Colorful Class Floats

The seniors chose the theme "Our Ropes of Today Ring the Bells of Tomorrow" for their last float. "Our Three Coins in a Fountain" was the junior entry. The sophomore's "Second Shot to Success" was successful enough to be awarded first prize. The freshmen should be complimented for their float, "She's Our Queen of Hearts."

Vocational Subjects Offer Excellent Opportunities

Savory aromas of pineapple cookies and cherry pie gently float through the halls as the home economics girls prepare an assortment of dishes. Sewing machines hum as the seamstresses make their dresses, skirts, blouses, or a wide variety of other things. They also study child care, care of the sick, menu planning, and home furnishings.

Sounds of hammering and sawing can be heard coming from the shop. These sounds indicate that the boys are busy building and repairing items for the home or farm. Learning to use tools properly and blueprinting are very important to the students in shop.

Although not as noisy as the shop students, the agriculture class is just as busy. Their studies include how to judge animals, how to get the most from the soil when planting crops, and how to protect crops from insects.

Math and Science— Vital for the Scientific Age

To prepare for this new scientific age, biology, chemistry, and health are offered in the high school curriculum. In junior high science, an interest is created in which the fundamentals of science are learned.

Chemistry deals with the study of matter. Electricity, distilled water and chemical compounds provide the basis for laboratory experiments. With the aid of Mr. Huston, these ardent students try to overcome the fear of explosion and the sometimes annoying smells that the chemical reactions produce.

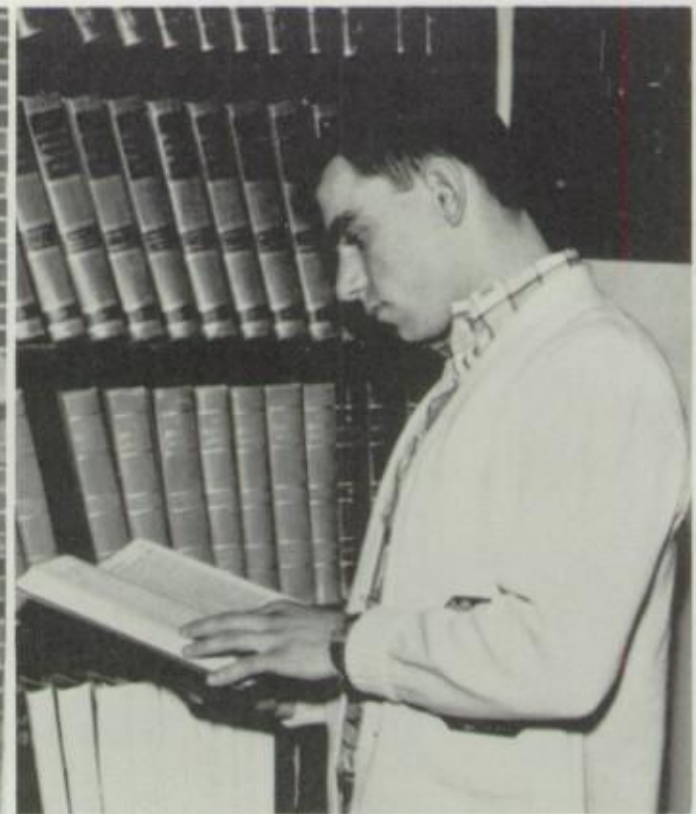

Adding, subtracting, multiplying, dividing and application of these four principles constitute the junior high mathematics curriculum.

Algebra, which deals with the solving of unknown quantities, is the first math course encountered in high school. Study of it is a most profitable mental occupation, for it demands complete accuracy and concentration.

Study in geometry involves work with points, lines, and planes. In this fast progressing world, construction of buildings and machines would be impossible without using known geometric facts.

Business arithmetic, general math and trigonometry are other mathematical courses offered to Carthage students.

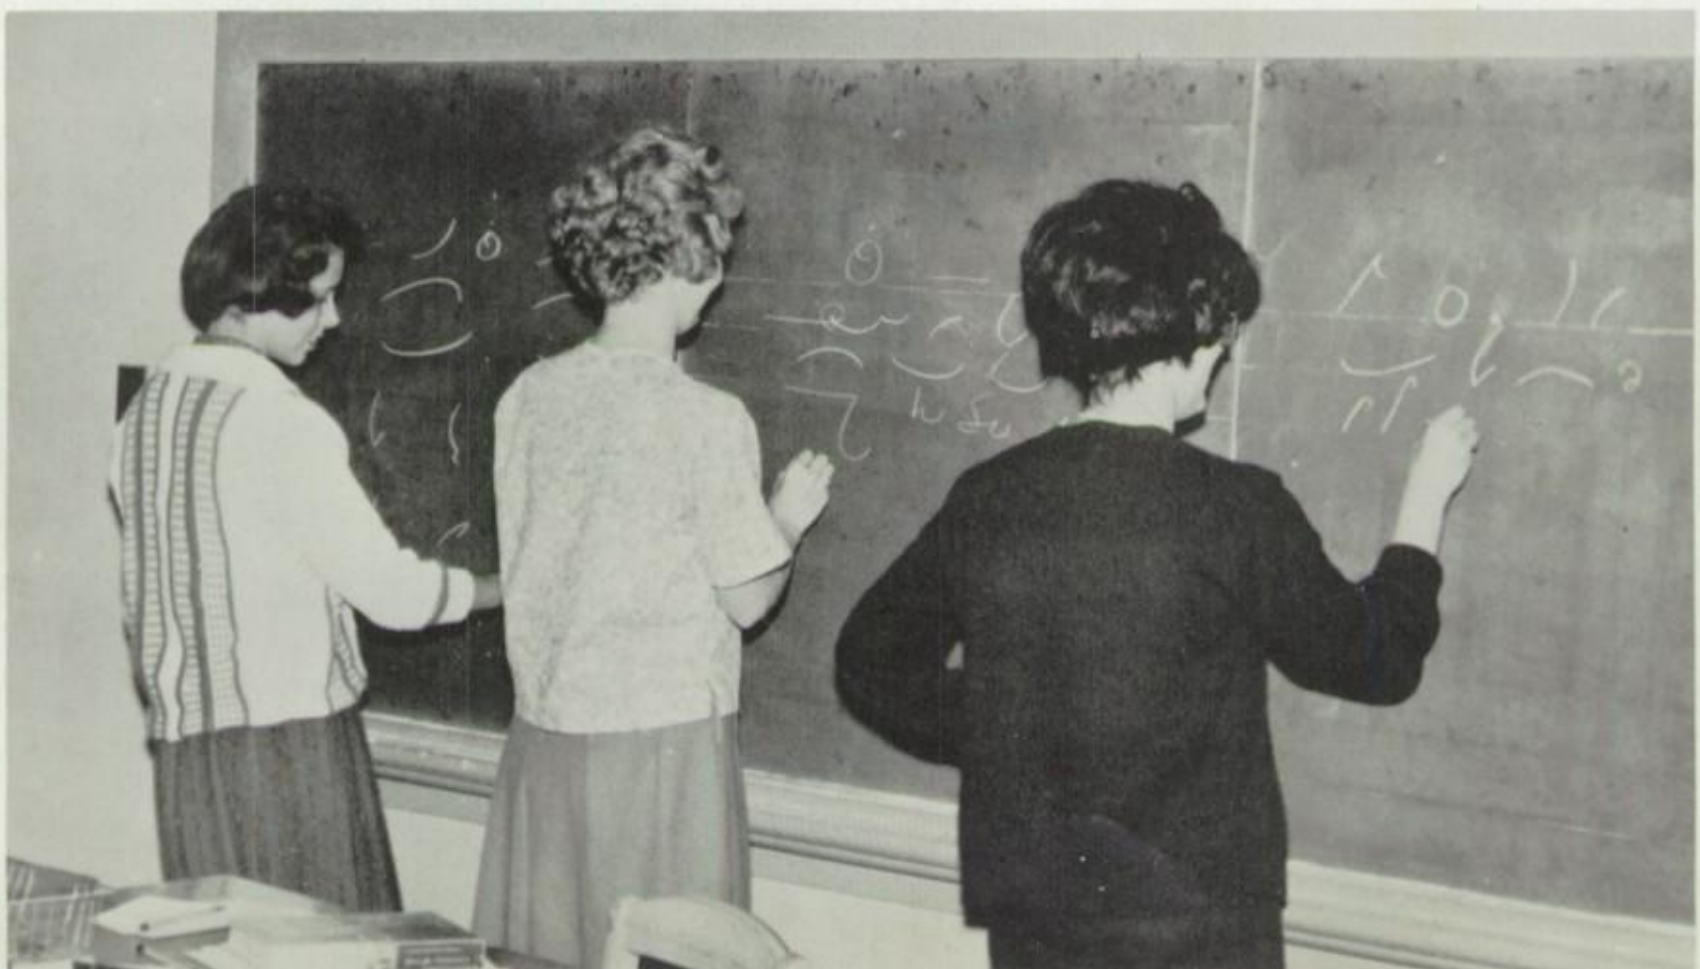

Uncertainty and

Since we speak, write, and hear the English language every day of our lives, it is important that we learn the proper usage of this language. Therefore, it is required that high school students take at least 3 years of English. By saying that English is required, we make it sound rather dull and uninteresting. However, this is not true. Just think how handicapped we would all be if we could not read or write or be able to communicate properly with our fellow man.

Confusion Created by Cuban Crisis

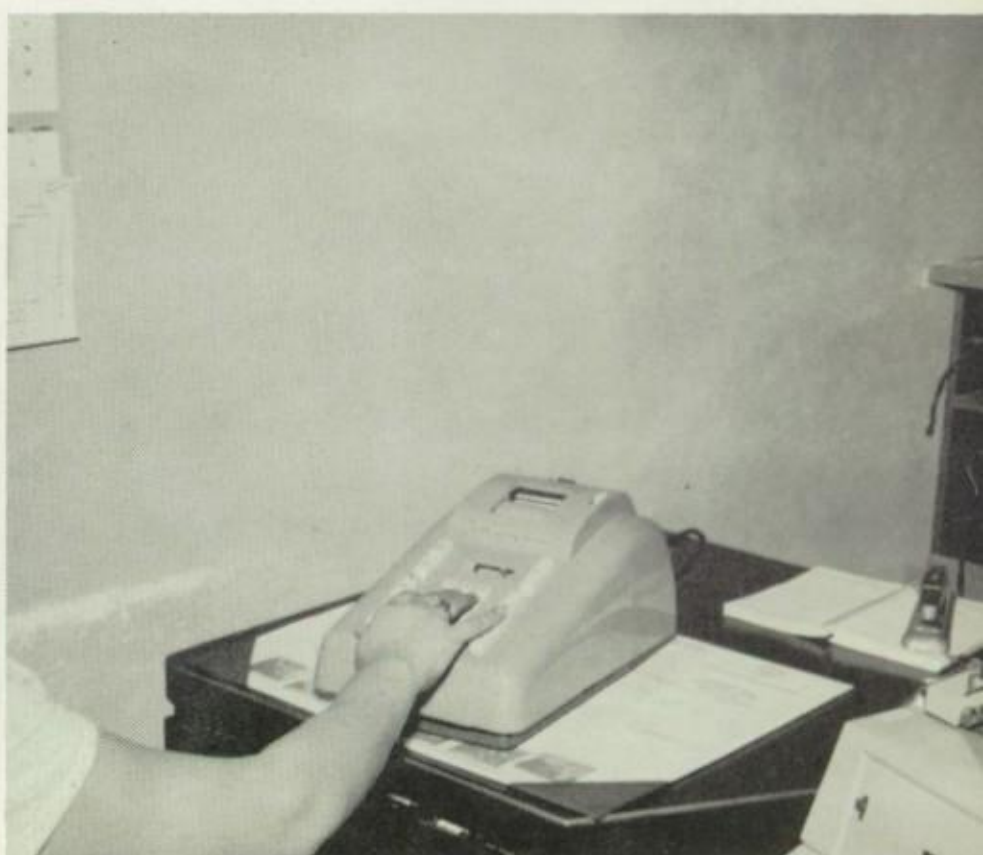

Another interesting subject, being taught this year is Spanish. This course has been taught here for 2 years and has been very successful. It is ideal for all types of students, in that it widens one's vocabulary and strengthens his ableness to communicate with other people.

The recently organized Spanish Club, sponsored by Mrs. Ruby, elected Arlene Ruby as president. Craig Lafuse is vice-president; Julie Ewing, secretary; Larry Bash, treasurer; and Jenny Eoff, news reporter.

Two new subjects in relation to the commercial field are being offered this year. These are business arithmetic and economics. These subjects, along with our regular business courses, are proving to be very helpful to our future business men and women.

In the past few years, an increasing number of people have been traveling to foreign lands. In order that Americans can intelligently represent our country abroad, they must know the social conditions, the background and the geographical locations of many different countries.

High school and junior high students learn of our country and the world through U.S. and world history, government, and geography.

Band Performs at Indiana State Fair

Our music department includes not only the high school band and majorettes but also training for the grade school and junior high. The band performs, not only at basketball games, but in district contests.

Since the automobile is a very important part of a teenager's life, our drivers' training instructor teaches many high school students the basic operations of a car and driving regulations. Trainees can gain driving experience on the highways and advance their knowledge in the classroom.

Students have an opportunity to strengthen their bodies through a wide variety of physical activities. Through exercising the body daily, students will become more physically fit, more mentally alert, and better Americans.

Administration

Many problems faced Mr. Smith, our new principal, at the beginning of the year, 1962-63. Some of the problems were discipline, curricula, and organization. Mr. Smith has put forth his efforts and made numerous improvements in Carthage High School.

Mr. Robert McKain, our township trustee, is concerned with our school's program in a sincere way. The township trustee is responsible for township funds. He employs and pays the school personnel, and is in charge of seeing that each department receives necessary equipment.

Heading the administrative department is Mr. Carmony, County Superintendent of Schools. He serves as a professional advisor for the township trustees, informing them of educational requirements for the school, assisting with the employment of teachers, and filing reports with the state office of education.

Eventful Year Awaits Seniors After Enrollment

Since this is our last year at Carthage High School, it is justly right that we would have more activities and be busier than any of the other classes.

First of all, last summer Linda and Gary went to girls' state and boys' state at Indiana University. This trip proved very educational, as they learned much about our own state government which will be helpful to them as future voters.

Then, in September, as we enrolled in school, we soon discovered the many experiences and duties awaiting us as we elected our class officers which were Linda, president; Pam, vice president; Kathy, secretary; Deanna, treasurer; and Sue Siler, news reporter. Mr. Huston and Mrs. McClurg were to be our sponsors for the coming year.

We were very well pleased when Kathy, our senior class queen contestant, won the 1962 Fall Festival Queen title.

Soon after the Fall Festival, we chose yellow and white as our class colors and the yellow rose as our class flower. We also realized that we must decide upon and order our announcements soon if they were to arrive on time. Having done this, we soon ordered our caps and gowns, which are to be Columbia blue and white.

Dean Schwomeyer, dean of men at Butler University, was chosen to be our commencement speaker. It was thought that he would be an excellent speaker and that he had had previous experiences in such matters. During all this excitement, we were also busy making plans for after graduation by taking scholarship tests, applying to colleges, and seeing about jobs.

We kept busy most of the year by working on the yearbook, of which we are so proud.

Through the entire year we proudly wore our senior cords, which are traditional for senior classes.

Finally, as the end of the year approached, we anxiously awaited our day of graduation and receiving our diplomas.

But before this climactic event, we awaited with great anticipation our class trip to Washington, D. C., and New York City, that we had worked for so hard.

All these activities, summed up, provided quite an eventful and worthwhile year - - one in which we shall look back on with great satisfaction.

Headin' for a Weddin' Enjoyed

A delightful comedy was given in October by the senior class with the additional help from Rose Conley, a freshman, who played the part of Sis Hollowbone and Gloria, the pet skunk, who played an important part in the play.

Sis and Pepper were the youngest of the Hollowbone clan and were always into trouble--running under the bed and table and generally keeping things lively and in a constant uproar.

Homer, the love life around which the story revolves, depicts the typical hillbilly--with a torn pair of faded blue jeans, torn shirt, and dilapidated shoes--when he could keep them on his feet.

The girls were of the same type. They were freckled faced and wore baggy, patched dresses.

by the Community

It seems that Homer Hollowbone starts writing some fantastic letters about himself to wealthy socialite, Melissa Dugan. By chance, Melissa gets snowbound at the Hollowbone cabin and finds out that Homer was just making up those stories he wrote in his letters to her.

With humorous romance and the usual feuding, everything turns out well in the climaxing last act.

Money and More Money!

The junior class found an activity filled year awaiting them as they were guided by their sponsors, Mr. Wright and Mrs. Bieschke.

Their main goal was to make money for their Senior Trip. They discovered there were several ways which this could be accomplished. Keeping this goal in mind, they spent most of the year making money. One of the first things they undertook was selling magazine subscriptions. Basketball season then rolled around again and they sold advertisements for the basketball programs. Also, they had suppers before and after all of the home ball games.

In addition to these seasonal projects, they sold candy and ice cream in the candy store at school. Candy, ice cream, cokes, etc. were also sold in the concession stand at the home ball games. There were also other worthwhile projects during the year which kept them very busy.

All of this hard labor will surely be rewarding to them as they catch a glimpse of the spectacular World's Fair during their stay in New York on their senior class trip.

To a girl who knows a lot of my secrets. Don't tell any of them I won't.

Increased Responsibilities

The sophomore class, although more familiar with high school standards than the freshmen, yet not quite as well versed on these matters as the juniors, found newer and more difficult fields to conquer.

Since most sophomores became sixteen this year, they enjoyed the new experience of learning how to drive and acquiring a driver's license.

Having ordered their class rings when they were freshmen, they found that the rings had finally arrived. They were so proud of them!

With the help of Mr. Jordan, their sponsor, they came through these new experiences with flying colors, and are now ready to continue their educational life.

Green, Greener, Greenest!

As the freshmen stumbled into their first year of high school, many interesting experiences confronted them. Because of a different administration, it was even more difficult for them to become accustomed to our way of life.

After violating many of the rules and regulations, they learned to get along well, using the demerit sheet as a guide, of course.

Perhaps the most embarrassing situation for them was the act of being late to class. Many upperclassmen have witnessed their disgusted and disappointing looks as they returned to class with the popular little pink slip.

However, most upperclassmen can remember those good ol' days when they, too, used to run around like chickens with their heads off. Just to let you in on a secret, most of us still do.

Baseball Team Shows Liveliness On Diamond

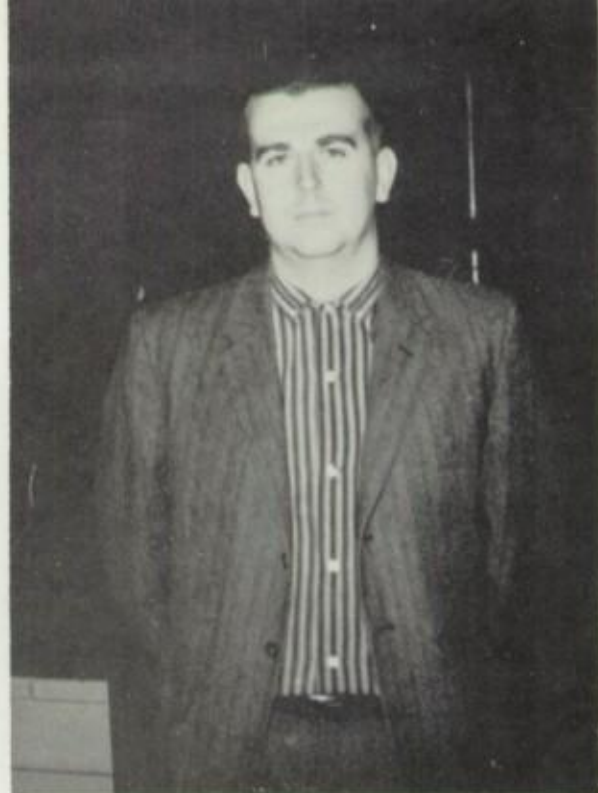

The Carthage High School baseball team had a 2-won, 5-lost season record this year. Gene Patterson won the batting trophy in summer season play with a .359 batting average. Lloyd Mofield won it in fall season play with an outstanding average for a freshman of .444. There was also much action at the county baseball tourney in which the diamond men won the first game at Morton. The team consisted of 13 players and was coached by Mr. Jordan and Mr. Baker.

Hustle and Good Sportsmanship

We are, and rightfully should be, proud of our Carthage Raiders basketball team. Since we lost so many seniors last year that were on the team, many people were worried about this year's season. Several of last year's B-team boys and this year's freshmen have done an excellent job filling these vacancies. Despite the loss of the senior players, they fought back and showed that as true Raiders they had what it took to make a good ball club.

Our ball players are respected and looked up to since they must train so hard and keep fit physically, but they must also keep fit mentally. Each member of the team must make passing grades in order to remain with the team.

Required on the Hardwood

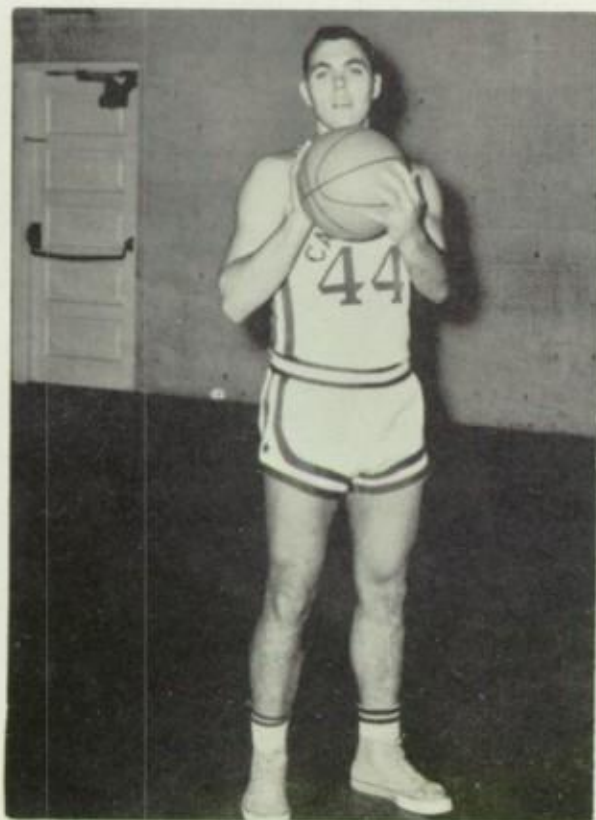

Although the regular season games are enjoyed by the students, the county tourney is everyone's favorite time. At this time of year we see great skill and techniques displayed. The blue Raiders went into the tourney playing New Salem. They lost this first game by only 2 points in an overtime. Our boys showed fine qualities in this game, and although they lost, they were looked up to and admired for the fine showmanship that they demonstrated there.

The important aspect about basketball or any sport is that win or lose we always try to show good sportsmanship and fair play. With these two traits in mind, it is easy for the students to back their team and urge them on to the many victories of which we know they are capable.

Basketball — Favorite Sport of CHS Students

Student managers, Larry Nigh and Roy Blessinger, are constantly working to keep uniforms in shipshape condition.

Since basketball is our one major sport through the school year, it is easy to see why so much emphasis is placed upon it. Although we lose a few senior member basketball players each year, the younger students coming up seem to compensate for this and try just as hard to make a good team as the last players did. Therefore, with each student trying his best, our basketball team seems to never lose its pep and to improve with each coming year.

Basketball plays an important part in the lives of the students at Carthage High School. Students usually get started by playing basketball in the 5th and 6th grades. As they grow older they can play junior high basketball, and eventually have a chance to qualify for the varsity team.

4-H and F.F.A. Prepare Students for Leadership

Since our community is basically made up of farm residents, the 4-H and F.F.A. play an important role in school activities. There are many projects available to the beginning 4-H member. If you try very hard and keep good records of your projects you may win one of many trips, offered as awards. Some of these include a trip to the Cincinnati Zoo and Coney Island, Forestry Camp, Conservation Camp, and the Purdue Roundup. To be a delegate at the National Club Congress is a goal of every 4-H'er.

The Future Farmers of America has a wide program of events. They go to all the county judging contests they can attend. Mr. Wright does an excellent job of advising the chapter on all the matters that come up before the group. The F.F.A. is one of the most important school organizations because it trains boys to become skillful farmers.

Student Assistants and

The well-being of any organization is attained by the varied services of many people. Therefore, to operate our school efficiently and to provide the proper atmosphere for our young people, the cooperation of many persons is needed.

Our cooks, along with Mrs. Bieschke, are constantly planning and preparing meals which contain the proper vitamins and proteins that our bodies must have in order for us to perform our other duties properly.

Also our janitors cooperate by working together to keep our school neat and clean both inside and out. They work diligently performing the tasks that accompany the different seasons of the year.

Staff Serve Student Body

Our need for transportation finds our school bus drivers carrying their share of the load by transporting students to and from school as well as other activities.

Another person playing an important part of this team is our school secretary, Mrs. Plank. She has many records and files to keep straight, not counting all the work put into keeping the treasuries of the different organizations up to date.

Student help is also prevalent in our school. Students who enjoy working with books and periodicals find working in our school library quite helpful.

Our school office girls are also learning many office techniques that will be helpful to them as they continue their educations.

All this teamwork makes it possible for the students to receive proper educations and to finally reach their established goals.

NATIONAL HONOR SOCIETY: Reviewing Four Ways From The Office are Honor Society members, Sue Siler, Linda Harrold, Mrs. Ruby, sponsor; Reta Stanley, Steve Marshall, and Linda Miller. Cindy Brooks, also a member, was not present when the picture was taken.

Student Council Organized This Year

Scholarship, leadership, service, and character are the virtues which distinguish National Honor Society members. A list of eligible students is given to the faculty, but a council of four makes the final decision of who the members will be. These students are in charge of the school paper and various other activities.

The Student Council is made up of the four class presidents and the president of the National Honor Society. When problems about various school activities, rules, and policies arise, the Student Council meets and votes on the matter in question. Thanks to this group of students, everyone can be sure that these matters are decided upon fairly.
